STILLS, 300 ARRESTS RECORD OF W. B. SAYLOR

Prohibition Agen Active Past Year in Enforcement of Liquor Law—Sees Improvement Here

DRIVING MOONSHINERS FARTHER INTO MOUNTAINS

Over 200 stills have been confiscated and destroyed in raids led by W. B. Saylor, federal prohibition agent in the mountain section during the present year. Over 300 violators of prohibition laws have been arrested during the same period.

Successfulness in this line is gradually and surely getting better, according to the officer. The moonshiner is being driven farther and farther back into the mountain recesses; only in rare instances does he venture within the populous places where law and order reign. The work of Mr. Saylor, a federal officer, is not confined to this section, but most of his activities have been in the mountainous section of the state.

J. W. SCALES TAKES OVER NEW GARAGE

Gastineau Building on Amesbury and 19th to be Operated by New Concern

The new garage on Nineteenth street and Amesbury avenue operated by W. A. Gastineau and company during the past year has been taken over by J. W. Scales who will operate a general repair and gas, oil and accesory business there under the firm name of Scales Bros.

The building which was erected during the present year is an ideal location to run automobile business. It has ample space for storage accomodations and its windows are admirably fitted for the display of new cars. A force of expert mechanics will be employed and automotive repair work of all kinds will be done, cars will be stored, or washed, battery work will be done and gas, oil and accessories will be sold.

Mr. Scales has not yet decided what agencies for automobiles he will have at the new place of business, though he is being beset by several firms to handle their cars. The Maxwell, Chalmers, Moon and Gray were sold there when the garage was under the former management.

The new proprietor of the place is very optimistic over business prospects for the coming year. For several months he has conducted a general repair business in the F. P. Scales Co. He is well known in Middlesboro and is receiving much encouragement from local citizens in his new venture.

Business at the new place will begin tomorrow, the first day of the New Year. His repair shop will be entirely removed from the other place.

REVIEW OF BUSINESS FOR 1923 SHOWS RAILROADS DID WELL

Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Business in the United States during 1923 was good in most lines, with the outlook for 1924 regarded as encouraging by many business men and banking leaders. While opinion is divided as to the extent which domestic business has suffered by the unsettled economic condition of Europe there is a unanimity of opinion among industrial executives that a satisfactory solution of the troublesome reparations problem would stimulate business and increase industrial activity in this country.

Freed from the heavy expenses entailed by the prolonged shopmen's strike and the loss of revenue from the miners' strike, which caused enormous losses in 1922, the railroads generally enjoyed a prosperous year. Net income of Class One roads for the first ten months of 1923, the latest figures available, totaled approximately $820,000,000, an increase of $205,000,000 over the corresponding period of 1923, with indications that the year's total net income would reach $1,000,000,000,000.

Freight traffic reached record breaking proportions, the weekly car loadings exceeding the million mark more than twenty times. The increased efficiency in loading and moving cars was shown by an increase of approximately 30 per cent in net ton miles over 1922. Huge sums were spent for new equipment ,the purchase of which was financed largely by short term obligations known as equipment trusts. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad resumed dividends on its common stock during the year ,the New York Central increased it semiual dividend from 5 to 7 per cent ,and the Gulf, Mobile and Northern declared an initial dividend of 1 per cent on its preferred stock. The Louisville and Nashville railroad declared a stock dividend of 62 1-2 per cent.

Over-Proddetion Crude Oil

Heavy over-production of crude oil in California followed by the discovery of a big productive field in central Texas unsettled the oil market, forcing rude prices to very low levels and bringing about a gasoline price-cutting war in various sections of the country, despite the fact that the consumption was greater than ever before. The increase in domestic production more than offset the loss in Mexico, where many wells ran into salt water earlier in the year, in order to conserve their cash resources and finance huge quantities of oil and gasoline in storage, several of the smaller companies were forced to suspend or reduce their dividends.

The automobile industry had the best year in its history, nearly 4,000,000 motor trucks being manufactured during the year, the greatest number in any year in the history of the industry, approximately 14,000,000, or 90 per cent of the world's supply. Production schedules recently announced by the larger companies indicate that the output in the first three months of 1924 will exceed that of the corresponding period of 1923.

Production of railroad equipment also reached new high records as a result of extensive replacements made by leading railroad systems. It is estimated that the railroads of the United States spent approximately $3,100,000,000 for equipment in 1923. Forward buying thus far indicates another huge outlay next year.

Part of a sugar shortage in midsummer which led to a temporary era of heavy speculation in sugar futures, proved to be unfounded. Sugar producing companies succeeded in recouping some of the heavy post-war losses, dividends being resumed in a few cases.

Cotton prices reached the highest levels in more than three years on a shortage in the crop, due primarily to the ravages of the boll weevil. Unseasonable weather and a heavy demand for the raw product were other contributary causes to the higher prices.

Relatively low wheat prices, due to a reduction in export demand, overproduction and increased competition by Canadian growers, led the suggestions of reduced freight rates on grain for export by President Coolidge and prominent western legislators. Others farm products showed material increases in value, particularly corn.

Mail order houses and chain stores did a record breaking business. However, the leather, rubber chemical, shipping and motion picture industries had periods of depression from which they had not fully recovered at the end of the year.

Considerable interest was aroused in financial and business circles in the closing weeks of the year by Secretary Mellon's recommendations for a reduction in income taxes, which was endorsed by President Coolidge in his first message to Congress. The belief was widely held that the reductions proposed would do much to stimulate business activity in the coming year.

KILLED INSTANTLY BY ELECTRIC SHOCK

Motorman at Crystal Victim This Morning When Trolley Wire Touches Wet Clothes

Lon Hensley, 22, motorman at the Crystal mines, was instantly killed at 10:30 o'clock this morning by an electric shock, caused by the contact of his wet clothing with the mine trolley wire.

The trolley pole had come off the wire. Hensley, going between the wire and the motor in order to adjust the pole, came in contact with the live wire. His clothing, wet because he had been going outside the mine on trips, in the rain, transmitted the shock instantly to his body. The coupler, a short distance away, came to him almost immediately and found the motorman dead.

The deceased lived at Ralston and had been employed at the mines for some time. He is survived by his parents and two brothers, Will and Robert Hensley. Funeral services will be held tomorrow. Interment will be at the Hensley cemetery.

FORMER CITIZEN URGES ROAD BOND

Advises Utilization of National Minerals to Develop This Section of Kentucky

A former Bell county citizen writes to the Daily News in regard to the proposed road bond issue urging the county's indorsement of this measure as well as others to help the section develop. The letter, in full, follows:

Being a resident, in absentia, of Bell County, the affairs of the County and of the Southeastern section of the State always interest me, and I would like to register some comment pro-pos of your road matters.

My old friend, Senator White Moss is right when he says conversation will will never build roads—unless it is backed up with definite means for raising money. No doubt the conversationalists have good intentions; it would be discourteous to assume otherwise, because they are citizens of more than average intelligence. But "Hell is paved with good intentions" and I refuse to believe that your good citizens really have any serious intentions of hampering the general progress of their section of the state by confining or limiting their activities to good intentions only. In these times of strenuous modern activities, good roads are universally recognized as a necessary link to complete our transportation system. The railroads have conceded motor freighting is more advantageous than the railways for so-called short hauls.

I gather that there seems to be objections to going in debt for roads. If it were not for bonded indebtedness the country would not have its present railway systems, motor trucks, steel industries, mining industries, or, in fact any of the larger industries which go to make up the greatest "He-Country" in the world.

One of the sure ways of gauging the progressiveness of any community is its bonded debt, and it is always a sure sign that any community out of debt is simply standing still and watching the procession march by to greater achievement. I do not advocate ill-advised, snap judgment indebtedness of course, but indebtedness that is the result of the best and most experienced minds, and based upon upbuilding purposes and limited only to the ability to liquidate within a generation.

Faith in Community

Failure to recognize the above principle simply indicates lack of faith in one's community, and if the citizens of a community are lacking in this essential, they cannot expect the investing public to have it, unless of course the faith of the citizens is obviously based upon ignorance and surely these good citizens who oppose bonded indebtedness as a principle are not insisting that they are ignoramuses.

I am sorry to note in one of your recent issues that Bell County will be out of debt in 1926. The whole county must have been on a vacation for a long time, or else up in the air like Rip Van Winkle.

In point of natural resources, it is one of the wealthiest communities in the world ,and should reach out and get commercial enterprises on a scale that would put the community a plo where it belongs. Southeastern Kentucky should be a hive of activity in iron, steel, chemicals ,and woodworking. As it is your raw materials are carted away to be worked up elsewhere ,and you are thus limiting yourselves to a sort of glorified mining and logging camp.

Your coal, than which there is better in the world, is being used to operate factories, mainly outside the state, or is raw material for coking at other points. Your timber is raw material for sundry purposes, also mainly outside the state. Your limestone is not utilized at all, except to a very small extent for road ballast.

Urges Iron, Coal Industries

Iron ore is available in Tennessee and in Virginia, just over the line.

Your coal is low in sulphur and makes nearly ideal coke for blast furnaces, foundries and other metallurgical purposes. Employing by-product ovens, you save the ingredients which are the basis of all coal tar products, benzol, ammonia, etc., not to mention gas for heating and lighting purposes.

Nearly all the expenses for running the state of Minnesota are paid from taxes on iron ore mined in the Mesaba Range, and I believe that this principle is sound and just. All Raw Materials shipped outside the limits of state, and there worked up for commercial purposes should be subject a tax. This principle works in Minnesota and will work in Kentucky your coal is your principal raw material. PYROMANIACS SOUGHT AFTER FIRE MYSTERY

Some One Tried to Burn Apartment Houses Last Night, Tenth Attempt in Louisville in Past Three Nights

SEEK MAN WHO ESCAPED FROM ASYLUM MONTHS AGO

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 31.—Believing a pyromaniac who escaped from the central state hospital for the insane at Lakeland may be responsible, the entire detective force and a number of policemen today turned their attention to capturing the person who attempted to burn two more apartment houses last night and who made at least ten attempts to burn other buildings the last three nights. The Majestic apartments and Beechmore apartment, housing scores of people, were his intended victims last night. Among other fires which may be due to the same cause was an attempt to burn the dental college of the University of Louisville Sunday night. A passerby saw a blaze in the basement, which was extinguished by firemen with a loss of $3,000 to the building. Meanwhile police are looking for Lindsey Blanton of Richmond, Ky., who escaped from the asylum about nine months ago and who was indicted but never tried there for arson. Extra police will be stationed at all apartment houses tonight.

A THOUGHT

Who can find a virtuous woman? for her price is far above rubies.—Prov. 31:10.

VIRTUE alone is sweet society. It keeps the key to all heroic hearts, And opens you a welcome in them all. Emerson

THE PAST YEAR IN MIDDLESBORO

On the last day of the year it is always fitting to pause and reflect on the accomplishments of the year. Each man and woman has his own reflections satisfying in some instances, regretful in most instances of opportunities overlooked and plans unfulfilled. A city, too, has its list of things accomplished and things left undone, differing from neighbor cities as one individual from others

For Middlesboro this has been indeed an eventful year. Often during the year we were impatient because improvements were made so slowly and because progress did not come on wings but as we look back we see many things satisfactorily accomplished. And this in the face of slackened business and financial conditions for the past six months.

The street program has been our big [illegible] accomplishment. Ten blocks of paving have been laid on new asphalt [illegible] avenue, this year, making Cumberland [illegible] Middlesboro very pleasant entrance to the rough streets we [illegible] in contrast to; an improvement [illegible] were accustomed hundreds to this city which will be [illegible] Fitzpatrick avenue to trade. In addition, orders for the purchase of street cleaning equipment have been given to provide for keeping the new streets in prime condition all of the time.

Then there was our Community Chest put over in such splendid style last summer. The quota of $17,000 was oversubscribed nearly one thousand dollars, and practically all of it has been or is being paid in. The chest fund has enabled the city to take care of its philanthropic obligations in a fitting and worthy manner and has eliminated the incessant "drives" of past years.

The several conventions which have been successfully held in the city during the past year have been a great advertisement for the city. In every instance, the guests went away praising the hospitality and beauty of our city and spreading its praise for miles. There have gone out from Middlesboro, too, movements that promise far-reaching results. One is the agitation [illegible] National Park at the Cumberland [illegible] site, a matter which would be invaluable to this section and which richly deserved here. Another is the [illegible] improvement work which has [illegible] a measure, directed from here [illegible] has led to the keeping of [illegible] through this entire section all winter.

THE PASSING OF A PIONEER PATRIOT

A number of Kentucky papers last week carry stories of the death of C. B. C. Nolan, pioneer Harlan countian who was killed by a switch engine last Sunday. Mr. Nolan is the original of "Chad," the hero of John Fox, Jr.'s "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." He was an uncle of Mrs. Frances Hurst of this city. The Harlan Enterprise, writing of him, says in part:

"Mr. Nolan, known all over this section of the mountains as Uncle Chad, was loved and respected by all that were accorded the privilege of calling him friend. His home at Chad was a haven of rest and entertainment for all who passed that way, rivalling the late lamented Col. Taylor for the title of a prince of hospitality.

"Uncle Chad served during the Civil War on the Home Guards and was actively engaged on several occasions with marauding bands of Confederate soldiers. On one occasion, Mr. Nolan who was then just a boy, found on the battlefield a sad[illegible]bag containing a part of the records of General John H. Morgan.

"He was elected to the Legislature two successive terms [illegible]erved from 1900 to 1904 as repre[illegible]entative.

"Mr. Nolan's grandfather, John Nolan, was an aide on the staff of Gen. George Washington during the Revolutionary War and was given a grant of land for his services that included the present site of Middlesboro, much of Bell county and a part of Harlan. The family moved to their property from their home at Leesburg, Va.

"Chad, Ky., and Nolansburg, Ky., were both named in honor of Mr. Nolan whose early efforts and foresight made possible the development of that section of the valuable coal fields of Harlan. No other man in the state has the honor of two stations named for him.

"Uncle Chad was the last of his generation, lovable, kindly, always neighborly and hospitable and people swore by his integrity and honesty. Harlan county and Eastern Kentucky mourn the loss of this steadfast patriot."

What a tribute to this man, one of the last of a generation of patriots, men who had time to apply themselves to serving their state, their neighbors, their friends and humanity, forgetting self in the service. These were the men who made America's glorious history, who caused this country to shine as a beacon light throughout the nations of the world. The men of this generation, financial wizards, geniuses at making and spending money, have accomplished material things that their fathers never dreamed of. But alas, they have lost something of the steadfast courage and integrity for which their fathers were so honored, a loss which threatens more each year to dim our light in the world's eyes.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

So off they went to the Old Woman's house.

"WHAT is it you want us to do?" Nick asked the Gingerbread Man.

"If you don't mind I wish you would help me to rescue my Lady Love" said the Gingerbread Man, sobering suddenly. Nancy wasn't sure but what she saw a tear run down from one of his raisin eyes. However, it may have been the syrup with which she stuck on the raisin gone. But anyway she felt sorry for him.

"Of course we will!" she declared before Nick had a chance to reply. "Is your lady love in trouble. How does it happen she needs rescuing? Did a wicked knight run off with her?"

"I don't know what you are talking about at all," said the Gingerbread Man, "but it sounds as though you mean well, anyway. I don't know what a wicked knightis. I know what a bad night is—all stormy and rainy and blowy and—"

"My goodness!" exclaimed Nick, looking at his alarm clock in the light of the lantern in Bo Peep's garden. "It's 2 o'clock and if we have any rescuing to do we'd better be about it instead of talking so much. What is it we are to rescue?"

"My lady love!" answered the Gingerbread Man with great dignity. She is the Clothes Pin Doll that belongs to one of the Old Woman's children. Her name is Anaconda Arabella Asthma Annabelle. But come! We'd better be going."

So off they went to the Old Woman's house, built like a big shoe, right at the turn of the road.

A patch on the old shoe had blown loose like a door and in they crept, all three of them, the Gingerbread Man going first.

"Sh! Sh! Sh!" he whispered softly. "Where are you, Anaconda, Arabella Asthma Annabelle? I'm here to save you."

"I'm here!" came a muffled voice out of the darkness. "And I'm almost strangled. I'm upside down in the toy box under a stocking-top cat and I'm nearly smothered. His braided tail is in my eye and his whiskers tickle my nose till I want to sneeze my head off I would, only it's only painted on. My nose is! And I can't sneeze."

"Never mind, darling. I've brought some brave friends to save you. No more shall you stand on your head in the waste-basket from which the mouse rescued me."

"You stay here," whispered Nick. "You make too much noise when you hop on one foot. I'll get her."

The poor Gingerbread Man dropped another sugary tear of gratitude.

In another minute, Nick had the Clothes-Pin Doll safely out of the box and the four of them crawled out through the patch.

Then back they went through Daddy Gander Land to the Christmas tree house.

Tom Sims Says

Buy a comfortable sofa. A comfortable sofa goes a long ways toward a successful Leap Year.

Good fights have ruined many a Leap Year prospect. Love is blind, so make it in the dark.

Tell him you can't shoot a pistol. A man may be brave and still hesitate to marry a good pistol shot.

If your Leap Year prospect is skimpy wear a bustle. You can sit in a chair after you get him.

Tell him others want to marry you. Never let on he is your last chance. Men don't like that.

Learn to make home brew. Any man will marry any home brew maker. This is more important than cooking.

If a woman lets a man brag about his past long enough he will want her to take care of his ruins.

Don't faint too heavily during Leap Year. You can't propose to a man you have given painter's colic.

Look while kissing during Leap Year. No man wants to marry a girl who sticks her nose in his eye.

Don't crunch when you bag a prospective Leap Year husband. It may remind him of the price of pork chops.

Tell him he looks lonely. Tell him often and he will believe it. Then you can marry him easily.

Let him tell you the story of his life. Pretend you believe it and you will have him half married.

Get your mother to cook him a meal. Swear you cooked it. A full man will marry almost anybody.

If your prospective Leap Year husband chews gum this is nice. He can chew the rag with you later.

Buy a new dress. Tell him you made it. Claim your clothes cost a dollar a month. You can marry him.

Get all cleaned up. Put on a gingham apron. Let him supposedly find you at work. Propose quickly.

Sit on his knee. Run your fingers through his hair. Use flavored sticks. Propose in the dark.

Keep your parlor shades down. Last Leap Year many a girl lost her chance because the shades were up.

Ask your parents to object to your fellow during Leap Year. Then marry you for spite.

LETTER FROM RICHARD SUMMERS TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW, CONTINUED

Poor old Alec Einstein is trembling in the knees until he can hardly stand upright. He came and almost wept on my shoulder this morning as he explained to me that he was so deadly afraid Carton was going to marry Miss Perier and take her out of the business.

She has made him over a million dollars already on that picture.

The other night at the Ambassador she insisted that I should come over and sit at the table where she was dining with Carton.

I happened to mention you were perhaps the best friend of John Alden Prescott and said I had received a letter from you recently in which you had told how devoted Leslie Prescott was to her adopted baby.

I don't know why, but at that moment I was looking straight at Miss Perier. For a second I thought she was going to faint. Carton seemed to have thought so too for I heard him say under his breath, Buck up, Paula, buck up. You can't help it now.

The girl with the greatest courage, did buck up. She lifted the saddest eyes I have ever seen to mine and said, "I expect one of the penalties that comes to a moving picture actress is that she cannot devote herself to anything but her work, Dick."

I wonder if I have told you that Paula has lost all her French accent since she has been out here. I am rather sorry. She told me the other day that she had been studying every minute she has had away from the studio.

THE ROVER

A weary lot is thine, fair maid,
A weary lot is thine!
To pull the thorn thy brow to braid
And press the rule for wine.
A lightsome eye, a soldier's mien,
A feather of the blue,
A doublet of the Lincoln green—
No more of me you knew
My Love!

This morn in merry June, I trow,
The rose is budding fair;
But she shall bloom in winter snow
Ere we tow meet again!
He turned his charger as he spake
Upon the river shore,
He gave the bridle-reins a shake
Said "Adieu for evermore,
And adieu for evermore!

The New Touring Car $295 F.O.B. DETROIT

A Striking Value—at $295

Considering the improved appearance of the new Ford Touring Car, one would naturally expect a proportionate advance in price.

Larger scale production, however, has made it possible to incorporate in this new type touring car a number of decided improvements without increasing its cost to the purchaser.

A comparison extending over a long period of years will reveal the fact that the present price is actually the lowest at which the five-passenger open car has ever been sold.

The Ford Touring Car stands today, as it always has, a most remarkable value in the motor car field.

This car can be obtained through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan
